

SHOULD WE ALLOW MADISON NGUYEN TO CONTINUE TO DECEIVE US?

➤ BACKDOOR DEALING

Months before any public meeting, Madison Nguyen instructed City staff to name the ENTIRE area on Story Road after her friend's private business—Vietnam Town Business District. In addition, she arranged for her friend to receive $100,000 of taxpayer money while San Jose is facing a $22 Million deficit.

Subject: RE: Vietnamtown Business District Banners & Monument--Meeting with Councilmember Nguyen #1

Helen,

Thanks for the notes. A couple of clarifications:

1. The name is called Vietnam Town Business District. Separating "Vietnam and Town" would be good.

*Recieved from the San Jose City Clerk Office

4. Redevelopment Agency will provide $100,000 in funding for this project.

4. Also, since Mr. Tang is willing to pay for most of the costs, is a public meeting still necessary to inform the public of this project?

Confident in Madison Nguyen's secret promise, Lap Tang placed numerous ads to promote his business — located in the heart of the phantom "Vietnam Town Business District."

Madison Nguyen planned to do this without asking the residents or businesses in the area, and she tried to hide it so YOU would never know of her shady dealing.

➤ BREAKING THE LAW

Madison Nguyen's unethical behavior caused a lawsuit against the City of San Jose regarding a Brown Act violation – securing a majority vote on this issue before it was discussed in a Council meeting.

"If you know that people are going to be with you and follow you whatever the name is going to be, I think that is a violation," Constant said. "I think the Brown Act is pretty clear."

➤ RECKLESSNESS

Whose agenda is Madison Nguyen really serving when she proposed a $2.7 Million citywide election on the naming of a business district, while the City of San Jose is facing a $22 Million deficit?

COST SUMMARY/IMPLICATIONS

Assuming a citywide ballot¹, costs are estimated as follows:

For June 2008 (assumes no other ballot measures for San Jose)

One Measure	$ 751,392
Three Measures	1,397,162
Seven Measures	2,688,704

How can Madison Nguyen effectively represent the City of San Jose when it is clear that thousands of people demand an end to her unethical behavior?
